JUNE 2022

A MESSAGE FROM OUR EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

In my first Spring semester as Executive Director, I have had the tremendous honor to attend four in-person and one virtual Phi Alpha Theta Regional conferences, and it has been thrilling to speak to audiences in many different parts of the country, as well as to meet so many of our wonderful student members and faculty advisors! At two of the meetings I attended, fellow students and/or faculty members were invited to comment on the papers delivered at the conference, and this seems to be an excellent opportunity to learn from and encourage one another in our work. If you are planning to host a regional conference next year, first, THANK YOU for volunteering, and, if you want advice on how to plan your meeting, I would be glad to share my thoughts.

Because I am still also the Book Review Editor for our journal, The Historian, it has been my privilege to pick out the books that are offered as prizes for our award-winning papers at each of the regionals. In each case, I try to find a book that seems best suited to your particular interests, as expressed in the title of the paper you delivered, as well as the boxes you checked on the form. Luckily, I have been aided in this selection process by my BRILLIANT assistant, Sofia Paschero, who is, very soon, beginning her Ph.D. studies at Texas Christian University! In the meantime, Sofia has created an extremely entertaining video, demonstrating how she selects the books in our national office and sends them to you—be sure to check it out here!

And all of this strenuous activity in the past few months gives me so much confidence for the bright future of our organization—and for the profession of History generally. If the opportunity to present your research at a regional conference has whetted your appetite for more of the same—and I always find that it does!—please consider presenting your paper at our upcoming NATIONAL conference, in Albuquerque, New Mexico, in January 2023. All the details are on our website and described throughout this newsletter. We are working hard to make this an unforgettable experience for you. The world needs more History, all the time, and our society needs more people like our members!
